Greetings from Bishop Moore College Mavelikkara.

My personal perceptions on the so-called vocational training at institutions were somewhat skeptical until I took a close watch of the CCEK (Center for Continuing Education Kerala) programmes run in my campus attached to the CE Cell. (Continuing Education Cell).

My observation over the past few months entirely changed what I was conceived on the programmes like this in general. To my surprise, I found the CCEK programmes are highly structured and constantly monitored. (By the NSDC Training Partner).

I observed that, a string of events from allocating master data of students, maintaining academic records including staff & student attendance, conducting periodical examinations, etc. were organized in a very systematic manor.

It is also important to know that the aspirants of this programme are getting entitled for a dual certification (CCEK & NSDC) as this curriculum has been successfully bought under the National Occupational Standards (NOS). This enhances the employability options and the acceptability of the certificate nation-wide.

It is certainly a matter to be underlined that the college becomes eligible for a considerable revenue share of the aforesaid programme almost parallel to its growth. I do salute the government initiatives and men behind its successful functioning.

I do personally convey my whole hearted supports for CCK programmes and wish if it would consistently follow similar work patterns and strive to become even more efficient in the years to come.
